

EXPLORING STEM STUDENTS' EXPERIENCES THROUGH AN INTERSECTIONAL LENS

Dr. Lissette Delgado-Cruzata
CUNY John Jay Collge, NY

Dr. Lourdes E. Echegoyen
The University of Texas at El Paso, TX

Dr. Yudi Vargas Lewis
Weber State University, UT

This panel is presented as part of the Hispanic Serving Institutions-HUBS, "Intersectionality as Inquiry and Praxis: Race, Class, Gender and Ethnicity for Student Success in STEM" (HIS-HUBS), 5-year long National Science Foundation (NSF) grant-funded partnership between the City College of New York, Lehman College, Hostos Community College, The University of New Mexico, New Mexico State University, and Central New Mexico Community College. This project centers on examining students' performance in STEM and non-STEM majors, using an intersectionality approach, detecting and incorporating appropriate variables and way of measuring them to create a more accurate and truthful picture of Latino/a/x students' experience in institutions of higher education.

Our CUNY based team is comprised of:

Dr. Ramona Hernández | The City College of New York | Director of the CUNY Dominican Studies Institute & Professor of Sociology

Dr. Yoel Rodríguez | Hostos Community College | Chair, Professor, Natural Sciences Department

Dr. Maria-Isabel Roldos | Lehman College | Associate Professor | Department of Health Sciences, and Director of the CUNY Institute for Health Equity

Dr. Antonios Varelas | Hostos Community College | Professor of Psychology, Behavioral & Social Sciences Department
